NEFA’s National Dance Project (NDP), launched in 1996, supports the creation and touring of new dance works throughout the United States. Since its inception, the program has distributed more than $25 million in funding to support the dance field in ways that enhance partnerships between artists and presenters with the equally important goals of engaging and expanding audiences for dance. Beyond grantmaking, NDP works through various initiatives to develop a strong infrastructure for dance. Currently these emphasize production residencies, international exchange, regional development of dance artists, and the work of contemporary art centers.

NDP strives to adapt to the dance field’s changing practices and needs. In response to a growing need for flexibility around creation and touring timelines for artists and presenters, the NDP touring period will now extend from 15 to 18 months. Additionally, Production Grantees will have more flexibility around when their NDP-supported tours can begin and when their tours are finalized.

This publication contains descriptions of current NDP projects that have funding available to support touring fees. This funding is available to U.S. nonprofit organizations through Presentation Grants which cover up to 50% of the artist fee and travel expenses per engagement during a project’s NDP touring period. Interested organizations should contact the listed tour coordinators as soon as possible to be included in the project’s NDP tour (see page 11 for more information).
To see excerpts of work by the artists and companies in this publication, visit the National Dance Project page at nefa.org. Additional projects eligible for NDP Presentation support will be announced in December 2014. For more information on eligibility, criteria, and application process, visit nefa.org.

Court/Garden
A spectacle in three acts, Court/Garden (CG) is a dance and live music performance. It takes as its inspiration the imperial ballets of Louis XIV’s French Court, the spectatorship of the proscenium stage, and the presentation of video feeds as cultural, social, and political frames of experience. With direction by choreographer Yanira Castro, an environment by Kathy Couch, costumes by Mio Guberinic, and music by Stephan Moore, CG continues a canary torsi’s work in developing scenarios where the audience’s presence radically impacts the work.

New Work by Alonzo King
Alonzo King LINES Ballet will produce a ballet set to a new composition by master bio-acoustician Bernard Krause and composer Richard Blackford. The composition, created using natural soundscapes coined “biophonies,” will provide the music for a new ballet choreographed by Alonzo King. The ballet will have its premiere at San Francisco’s Yerba Buena Center for the Arts in April 2015.

AXIS collaborates with Joe Goode on to go again, a dance-theater work that brings to light issues facing our nation’s veterans and addresses their resilience following severe life changes. As one of the world’s leading ensembles of performers with and without disabilities, AXIS brings to this work a depth of embodied understanding of resilience and what it takes to live with adversity. Joe Goode is known for promoting understanding, compassion, and tolerance through the innovative use of text and high-velocity dancing.

Core

Core is an evening-length piece designed in the round for four highly trained dancers within artist Tania Ursomarzo’s large-scale installation. This newest work is a departure from Gill’s recent restrained, cerebral choreography. Inspired by the centripetal design, Core moves into the body’s internal realms of kinetic experience and imagination to embolden each performer’s authorship and mine a new, pulsing, visceral dance.

Pohaku (Hawaiian for stone) is a dance-theater piece inspired by Morgan’s exposure to the work of his late cousin, hula master John Kaimikaua, and Morgan’s own multi-racial Hawaiian/Asian/Caucasian identity. The work will incorporate Hawaiian chant, hula, contemporary dance, theater, and storytelling to explore compelling universal themes in the story of Hawaii’s native people, including land loss and fractured identity. Recipient of a National Performance Network Creation Fund, the project will premiere in Fall 2015 at Dance Place and tour to Maui Arts & Cultural Center in 2016.

Ana Maria Alvarez, in collaboration with director Michael Garces and a team of musicians and designers, creates a new Urban Latin Dance Theater work. Inspired by Shakespeare’s The Tempest, Agua Furiosa uses multiple water themes and imagery of Oya, the Afro-Cuban warrior goddess of wind and storms, to invite audiences to face the gruesome contradictions of color, poverty, and immigration in the U.S. and seeks to invent new paradigms for how we think about and live inside of the shifting conversation about race in America.

Eiko: A Body in Places
A Body in Places is Eiko’s first solo, a radically scalable presentation for non-theatrical venues ranging from major transportation hubs to “odd” out-of-the-way spaces lit by natural light. This work is for audiences ranging from the serendipitous hundreds to an invited few. The variants are united by Eiko’s lone presence in a distinctive kimono on a colorful futon and by an accompanying exhibition of William Johnston’s haunting photos of a similarly clad Eiko in ruined Fukushima, Japan. The work explores solitude, fragility, intimacy, and a relentlessly shared gaze.

Thank You For Coming: PLAY [working title]
Thank You For Coming: PLAY is the second in a series of works which heighten how we experience ourselves in relation to other bodies, stories, and spaces. The ritual of storytelling will be forced to the forefront of a physically-driven dance-play to examine how we rely on stories to relate to one another and form identities as individuals and citizens. The conflation of Driscoll’s life story with those of her collaborators and others will create a quasi-fictional collective autobiography that is danced, sung, and spoken.

johnbrown
Multidisciplinary dance artist Dean Moss draws from an intimate and varied history with activism to create johnbrown, a wry meditation on the radical legacy of the white 19th century abolitionist John Brown. Framed through the lens of inexperienced teenaged participants, johnbrown excavates contemporary birthrights born of the struggle against “our peculiar institution,” while simultaneously exploring the gendered and generational processes at play in their perception. It premieres in New York at The Kitchen October 16-25, 2014, the 155th anniversary of the radical activist’s raid on Harper’s Ferry.

Remains

Remains, a new dance work by John Jasperse, will address the illusion of self as separate and the notion of legacy as interconnected cause-effect relationships with one’s environs. The work will be constructed with a notion of an extended body that involves physical objects and technology where the dance continues to exist in some form without the dancers. An ancillary version, remains of Remains, will be a “choreographic object/performance installation presented separately or in tandem with the full performance.

Soft Goods

Dancers are expected to be seen and sensual, to feel and reveal everything to us. But stagehands, who make dances possible, are expected to disappear, to become no one, to make the work and the worker invisible. When you work this way, you risk living this way. Soft Goods, created and performed by stage technicians (some of whom are also dancers), uses choreography, manual labor, scripted and improvised text, and the performance space itself to look at work, loss, aliveness, death, disappearance, and occupational self-oblitration.

The Black Rose
In a new dance, veteran choreographer Lar Lubovitch pushes aesthetic boundaries, responding to the sonic richness and emotional rawness of a commissioned score by Scott Marshall. The artists' collaborative relationship takes its next step as Lubovitch expands his movement choices, juxtaposing less structured, less lyrical, and more seemingly improvised movement with narrative elements that harken back to ancient universal tales. The Black Rose premieres in October 2014 with live music by Le Train Bleu conducted by Ransom Wilson and can tour with live or recorded music.

Clytigation: State of Exception
In a sod-covered box, Ellsworth demonstrates her “over-the-counter counter-terrorism” protocols for avoiding surveillance, interpersonal drama, and death. Edward Snowden, Aeschylus, Guantanamo Bay, live-video processing, and an aerial drone help unpack the impact of military conflicts on bodies, privacy, and legal protocols. In Clytigation (and in the box), you can have habeas corpus while enjoying (or grieving) the gap between emotional intention and physical execution. girl gods girl gods explores the ancestry of women, individuals, and family members—and the idea of rage. Although a separate and complete work on its own, girl gods can be described as part two of Graney’s 2008 House of Mind, with the choreographer exploring the point at which the domestic realm drives down into the earth. The work includes a strong sculptural component and is heavily influenced by feminist artists and art practices of the 1970s.

Power Goes

Power Goes is a dance-theater work about power – how it is expressed through the body, personality, position, and how power makes things happen. Drawing on the figure of Lyndon Baines Johnson as subject and metaphor, the work explores how power is acquired and yielded, how it can be deployed for progressive action, and conversely, how it can be used to maintain the status quo and block change. A first collaboration for choreographer Carrie Hanson and playwright Stuart Flack, the project involves sound designer Mikhail Fiksel, video artist Bob Faust, lighting designer Julie Ballard, and dramaturg Michael J. Kramer.

THE GHOST OF MONTPELLIER MEETS THE SAMURAI

THE GHOST OF MONTPELLIER MEETS THE SAMURAI is a semi-narrative work based on an imaginary meeting between three dance legends: Dominique Bagouet, the leader of France’s Nouvelle Danse; Tatsumi Hijikata, the founder of Japanese Butoh; and Ellen Stewart, the founder and namesake of New York’s LaMama Theater. A work for eight dancers that mixes dance, song, and text, the work delves into the passion for “art” on the part of artists, arts professionals, and audiences. Why is art such an important part of our lives?

New Work by Twyla Tharp

Twyla Tharp, one of the nation’s leading choreographers, will mark her 50th year in 2015 with a national tour of a new work. Most significantly, the tour will launch a new Tharp ensemble, her first in over two decades. Tharp envisions a company of fourteen dancers (seven men and seven women) of the highest caliber to express Tharp’s unique classical/vernacular vocabulary. Set in three parts, the score will include Terry Riley’s In C, J.S. Bach’s Well Tempered Clavier, and works of Henry Butler, orchestrated by Steven Bernstein.

NDP FUNDING OPPORTUNITIES

FOR ARTISTS

NDP PRODUCTION GRANTS

WHO MAY APPLY
Choreographers and companies. Only one application per artist and/or company will be accepted. For more information on eligibility, visit nefa.org.

GRANT RECIPIENTS
Grants are made to companies with nonprofit status or to a nonprofit fiscal sponsor on behalf of an independent artist.

NEXT DEADLINE
March 2, 2015

Production Grants fund the creation and touring of new dance work. Grants are highly competitive and are awarded to approximately 18 projects annually.

Production Grants provide a package of support that includes up to $45,000 towards the creation of a new work, approximately $10,000 in general operating support, plus $35,000 distributed as NDP Presentation Grants to subsidize up to 50% of the artist fee and travel expenses to U.S. nonprofit organizations who present the new work on tour.

(For more, see NDP Presentation Grants on page 11.)

NDP TOURING AWARDS

WHO MAY APPLY
Choreographers and companies with a planned U.S. tour. Only one application per artist and/or company accepted. For more information on eligibility, visit nefa.org.

GRANT RECIPIENTS
Touring Awards are disbursed to U.S. nonprofit organizations as Presentation Grants.

NEXT DEADLINE
October 14, 2014

NDP Touring Awards support U.S. tours of dance works by both national and international artists. Up to ten works receive Touring Awards through a highly competitive application process each fall and are announced each December in a separate publication and on nefa.org.

Touring Awards provide up to $35,000 distributed as NDP Presentation Grants to subsidize up to 50% of the artist fee and travel expenses to U.S. nonprofit organizations presenting the funded work on tour.

(For more, see NDP Presentation Grants on page 11.)
FOR PRESENTERS

NDP PRESENTATION GRANTS

WHO MAY APPLY
Eligible U.S. nonprofit organizations presenting an NDP-funded project during its NDP touring period (see each project’s tour coordinator for details).

Organizations must be included on a project’s NDP tour plan in order to apply.

Organizations may receive multiple NDP Presentation Grants within a given season to present multiple NDP-funded projects but must submit a separate application for each project.

GRANT RECIPIENTS
Grants are made to U.S. nonprofit organizations to support up to 50% of the artist fee and travel expenses per engagement.

NEXT DEADLINES
Visit nefa.org for details

To apply for a Presentation Grant to present any of the projects in this publication during their NDP touring period, contact the project’s tour coordinator as soon as possible.

In addition to the projects in this publication, NDP Touring Awards announced in December 2014 are eligible for Presentation Grants.

Tour coordinators for each project provide NEFA with a tour plan. NEFA will contact organizations included on the tour plans to apply for Presentation Grants.

For more information on eligibility, criteria, and application process, visit nefa.org.
