Dear Friends,

This year, we are pleased to present projects from both the National Dance Project (NDP) and the National Theater Project (NTP) in one combined publication. We know that many of you support both dance and theater in your work, and we celebrate the interdisciplinarity of many of the artists who receive awards each year.

NEFA’s approach through the NDP and NTP initiatives is to invest in artists to make new work, and then to provide grants to their partners at cultural organizations to bring these works to their communities. With an eye to holistic support, the programs promote field-building by providing travel support, artist transition grants, community engagement awards, late-stage production residency support, and by hosting convenings and building networks. NEFA also conducts research and reports that advance learning about field-wide conditions and best practices.

This publication includes descriptions of NDP and NTP grantee projects, including those awarded this year, that have funding available to supporting touring fees. Funding is available to U.S. nonprofit organizations for up to 50% of the artist fee; interested organizations should reach out directly to the tour coordinator listed with each project. We invite you to visit the online directories at www.nefa.org to learn more and view work samples.

NEFA program staff continuously find ways to support and lead the field. Thanks to Quita Sullivan, Meena Malik, and Derek Schwartz in our theater program, Cheri Opperman and Kristin Gregory in our dance program, and to NEFA’s deputy director Jane Preston.

Sincerely,

Cathy Edwards
Executive Director

NATIONAL DANCE PROJECT ADVISORS

NEFA’s National Dance Project is guided by a rotating group of advisors who are leaders in the dance field, including dance presenters and dance artists. NDP advisors serve as the grant review panel that selects projects, and provide critical guidance to applicants in proposal development. In addition, advisors serve as a policy council and are ambassadors for the program in their communities. NDP advisors include new and established leaders in the field who bring varied perspectives and professional knowledge of dance forms, aesthetics, and practices to the advisor process. Advisor selection considers geography, gender, areas of expertise, and cultural and racial equity. For the most current list, visit www.nefa.org.

ASHWINI RAMASWAMY
Let the Crows Come
Minneapolis, MN

Legends throughout the world depict crows as instructors for the living and guides for the departed. In Let the Crows Come, Bharatanatyam dancer/choreographer Ashwini Ramaswamy’s investigation of ancestry and ritual becomes a genre-layering evolution of movement and music across cultural and corporeal boundaries. In this work, solos for three dancers of diverse disciplines channel mythography to evoke a memory that has a shared origin but is remembered differently from person to person. With an original score by three composers, including Jace Clayton (aka DJ/ rupture) and Prema Ramamurthy of Hyderbad, India; created in part through a Space Residency at the Baryshnikov Arts Center (NYC). When Birds Refused to Fly
Philadelphia, PA
www.btdanceproject.org

When Birds Refused to Fly is a contemporary, evening-length dance theater project, choreographed by Olivier Tarpaga, set to the music of Orchestre Super Volta. Super Volta’s music reflects the celebratory, post-independence fevers raging across sub-Saharan Africa in the 1960s and 70s, in stark contrast to the painful struggle African Americans faced during their fight for civil rights in the United States. This physical piece explores multiple facets of generational transformation culturally and geographically; examining what it is to build up and break down in the name of change. Estimated artist fee: Estimates dependent on number of tour sites, and do not include housing and local ground transportation: $14,000-$18,000/performance; $20,000-$35,000/week

(Re)current Unrest
www.charlesoanderson.me

(Re)current Unrest is an evening length immersive performance installation “ritual” built upon the sonic foundation of Steve Reich’s three earliest works: It’s Gonna Rain (parts 1 and 2), Come Out, and Pendulum. The piece is an investigation of legacy, authorship, and the history of black art and protest through the lens of the erasure of the Africanist presence inside of Reich’s compositions. Inspired by James Baldwin’s The Fire Next Time and Ta-nehisi Coates’ Between the World and Me, (Re)current Unrest is an open movement letter from a member of Generation X to the Millennial Generation, saying “stay woke.” Estimated artist fee: Estimates do not include housing, local ground transportation, and freight; additional community engagement and dialogic options available: $25,000/one week; $35,000/two weeks

Dance Theatre of Harlem (DTH) and Virginia Arts Festival (VAF), with support from the Kennedy Center, have commissioned a new ballet by Claudia Schreier with an original score by Jessie Montgomery for the DTH repertoire. Neoclassical in form, Schreier will create the work on 12 DTH dancers, and Montgomery’s quartet will record and perform the music. This ballet is being commissioned as part of two important cultural milestones: DTH’s landmark 50th Anniversary Season, and “American Evolution,” a statewide arts and education initiative wherein VAF is a lead partner, that aims to recognize the often-overlooked contributions of women and people of color through 400 years of Virginia history. Estimated artist fee: $45,000/performance; $85,000/week

Formulae & Fairy Tales places the cold, high-stakes world of mathematics alongside a vivid, twisted fairy tale palette of romanticized beauty. These worlds come together in Alan Turing’s story—father of the computer and artificial intelligence—encompassing nuanced themes of queerness, injustice, technology, and fantasy. The work features cryptography, codes, hidden meanings, and the apple as a symbol of forbidden knowledge and forbidden love. Theatricality, projections, and original music shape the performance into a landscape in which potentially-esoteric material becomes accessible to a wide audience. Performances will be complemented by Invertigo’s signature community engagement activities. Estimated artist fee: $19,000/ performance; $30,000/week

Chameleon is a multi-tiered, multimedia performance project by Jaamil Olawale Kosoko that examines the shapeshifting, illegible, and fugitive realities of Black diasporan people within the American context. Using live feed and augmented reality media with complexity theory—the study of adaptive survivalist strategies inside complex networks or environments—as a choreographic device, this work explores how minoritarian communities record and affirm their existence through collaborative actions and protests that archive personal, freedom narratives as a way to subvert culturally charged fields of systemic oppression, loss, and erasure. Witches, Trials, & Exhibitions! Liz Lerman’s new evening-length dance-theater piece, Wicked Bodies, wonders about the persistence across time and culture of old crones, evil stepmothers, and the use of the body as a source of fear by governments and institutions. Why is some knowledge celebrated, some criminalized, and some erased altogether? In the presence of magic both old and new, drones as familiars, and a surprising collection of witches, audiences will make their way through a restless story and a smashing of worlds. The tour calls for (though does not require) deep engagement. Premieres Fall 2020/Spring 2021. Estimated artist fee: no single performances, $65,000/week

Dancer Wendy Whelan and cellist Maya Beiser join forces with the seminal modern dance choreographer Lucinda Childs to create an evening-length work of music and dance, with evocative music by Pulitzer Prize-winning composer David Lang. Featuring both women on stage for the duration of the performance, the day is a meditation on two journeys—the mortal passage, followed by the eternal, post-mortal voyage of the soul. This bold, highly collaborative work explores universal themes not easily grappled with—memory, aging, death, the survival of the soul—through the shared language of music and dance. MOVEMENT ART IS
(JON BOOZ & LIL BUCK)

Love Heals All Wounds will go past headlines to explore the heartstrings of our shared consciousness in relation to police brutality, mass incarceration, and how the cycle of trauma on life needs to end. MAI is creating a full-length dance performance interwoven with spoken word, original music, and projections to chart a movement towards reflection, growth, and healing through sharing the dreams and visions of a world we create together. VICTOR QUIJADA’S NEW, DEEPLY PERSONAL WORK draws its inspiration from his experience growing up in L.A., a first-generation Mexican-American. Coming out of retirement and returning to the stage, Victor along with six company dancers explore themes of identity, home, and motherland. The work features a sound score remixed live onstage by composer and DJ Jasper Gahunia who will sample traditional Mexican Corridos, Ranchera, Norteño music, and Canto Cardenche, a little known, raw and vibrant singing tradition from the rural north of Mexico. This evening-length work challenges Victor and the audience to reckon with their own ideas of origin, belonging, and displacement—topics pulsing in our society today.

A multisensory exhibit and performance that explores the reverberation of a single word in a global community. Migratuse Ataraxia is a multi-media collaboration and performance that confronts the physical violence and psychic weight of the “latent melancholia,” wrought by the legacies of ante-bellum life and symbols of racial violence in the present. It centers black experience and embodiment through an emphasis on corporeality, gesture, space, and commensality. Performed in antebellum spaces in post-industrial southern cities replete with ante-bellum structures that invoke the inextricable legacies of slavery and white-supremacy. Estimated artist fee: $25,000-$30,000/performance; $50,000-$55,000/week

NERVOUS/SYSTEM

What connections are we missing in an always-on world? Interactive media artist Andrew Schneider (YOUARENOWHERE) and recurring collaborators create a performance cartography of the all-too-fleeting revelations, narratives, and emotional interactions flooding our bodies and brains every second of every day. Audiences discover a living map where a multiplicity of narratives come into view: a biker, oblivious of the car that will hit her, six blocks away; a couple kissing goodbye, then going on to lead different lives; flight patterns; Facebook usage; and countless other trajectories, patterns, possibilities, and futures. A breathtaking intersection of visceral physicality and visually stunning technology, NERVOUS/SYSTEM decodes the stories we miss each time we blink.

The Fever tests the limits of individual and collective responsibility, and our willingness to be there for one another. Performed in complete collaboration with the audience, The Fever examines how we assemble, organize and care for the bodies around us. Who will you be when our eyes are on you? Native Nation
Los Angeles, CA
www.cornerstonetheater.org

Native Nation is an immersive theatrical production about the Native people of a specific geographic area that explores the hunger that persists when culture, language, land, and identity have been denied to Indigenous people. Playwright Larissa FastHorse, director Michael John Garcés, and Cornerstone are creating a touring structure for American Indian communities, first at ASU Gammage and then on to other Native communities across the US. With Native Nation, Cornerstone looks to bring together and celebrate the tribal similarities and differences in an immersive setting through stories, culture, and food of the Indigenous people.

Try/Step/Trip
San Francisco, CA
www.thisisdahlak.com

Try/Step/Trip is a spoken word, multi-character musical performed in the body through the language of step dance. The story follows the journey of an anonymous narrator as he re-imagines his experience in a court-ordered drug rehabilitation program through a montage of lucid, sobriety-induced dreams. The devised work will chronicle the process of the playwright’s criminalization along with his struggle to be vindicated in the eyes of the law and society. The piece works through the personal shame of criminal stigmatization to examine the factors—both internal and external—that have misplaced him and the black male body in what appears to be a cultural rite of passage.

Gomela, a Bantu word, means “to go back to/to return.” Featuring award-winning poet Sunni Patterson, Gomela highlights the vibrant and percussive movements and stories that breathe life into ancient forms (African dance and drumming) and new artistic expression (spoken word, hip-hop, and jazz) that make evident the connection between Africa, Haiti, and New Orleans. At its core, it illuminates Place Matters—gentrification and the Right of Return of New Orleanians displaced after Katrina; and Black Lives Matter—the beauty and resilience of Black people, past and present.

JACK & is a comedy of errors structured on social codes and trainings from prison re-entry programs to debutante balls. The performance considers the metric-less damages of being in prison—not the time one has served but the measure of one’s dreaming that is given to the state. Aspirational class stories like those of the 1950’s sitcoms the The Honeymooners and Amos and Andy intersect with real and imagined entering-society ceremonies like debutante balls. Directed by Kaneza Schaal and starring Cornell Alston, the artists explore markers of transition and transformation and the liminal ritual spaces that bridge worlds.

Alleged Lesbian Activities is part community event, part living archive, part cabaret performance. Imagine: it’s Saturday night at Franki’s, a sticky-haired dyke bar. Performers intermittently dance and croon from a cabaret stage, sip cocktails from glitter encrusted glassware, and interact with the words of LGBTQ forebears in voice-over, reenacting scenes as described in oral history interviews. Alleged Lesbian Activities investigates the national disappearance of dyke bars and the impacts of their absence on our local communities by conjuring up a dyke bar as sexy, powerful, vulnerable, and complex as the stories we have heard about them.

MANUAL CINEMA
The End of TV
Chicago, IL
www.manualcinema.com

Set in a post-industrial Rust Belt city in the 1990s and told through a collection of original 70’s R&B-inspired art pop songs, The End of TV explores the quest to find meaning amongst the increasingly constant barrage of commercial images and advertising white-noise. Two sides of the American Dream—its technicolor promise as delivered through TV ads, and its failure, witnessed in the dark reality of industrial decline—are staged in cinematic shadow puppetry and lo-fi live video feeds with flat, paper renderings of commercial products. The performance is driven by a sweeping chamber art pop song cycle performed live by a five-piece band.

Bone Hill is an epic story of one woman’s return to her childhood homeland on Black Mountain and the coal mines of Harlan County, KY, where her family has dwelled for centuries. Traveling back in time to her childhood and her ancestors spanning four generations of women in a Cherokee family, Bone Hill explores their lives and stories. It is a story about the family’s connection to the land—the simplicity and sacredness of that connection and the ruptures that threaten to extinguish it. Endlessly inventive theater artists Jessica Grindstaff and Erik Sanko offer an emotional call to climate action. Inspired by the catastrophic 2011 tsunami and Fukushima nuclear disaster, this rippling meditation on water, heartbreak, and toxic fallout fuses Japanese butoh tradition and contemporary flex dance with Phantom Limb’s singular style of puppet theater. Created in collaboration with Dai Matsuoka of the transportive dance troupe Sankai Juku (FALLING OUT) weaves music, movement, and design into a haunting tapestry of collective collapse and renewal.

SANDGLASS THEATER
Babylon: Journeys of Refugees
Putney, VT
www.sandglasstheater.org

Babylon is a piece about refugees: their journeys, traumas, and challenges to resettlement. It is performed by puppets and actors, with choral singing. Sandglass has been developing this piece for over two years, and has reassessed the project after debuting a soft opening. We have realized that significant work is still necessary for a finished production. Our final phase of development will bring the company together to create and integrate new scenes addressing the walls of bias and misinformation that refugees face in their new homes.

“If you wish to make an apple pie from scratch, you must first invent the universe.” – Carl Sagan

PIE is a comedic and magical exploration of what happens when we don’t know what to do next. The play begins as four armchair experts arrive at a panel discussion, only to find that the moderator is a no-show. As tensions rise in a series of Rube Goldbergian accidents, the mundane collides with the celestial and the panelists’ uncensored alter-egos are unleashed. A skewed history of the universe then unravels, from moments before the Big Bang to the electronic baroque of today.

Based on the dystopian novel by the late Afro-futurist and science fiction author Octavia Butler, Parable of the Sower: The Opera is a genre-defying work of political theater that harnesses 200 years of Black music. It chronicles the spiritual awakening of young Lauren Olamina amidst a not-so-distant America wracked by the violence brought on by climate change that has driven society to the brink. Exploding the form of a ritual song-cycle, Parable fuses science fiction, African American spiritualism, deep insights into gender and race, and climate activism to construct a mesmerizing meditation on the future of human civilization.

Welcome to Hawai’i, the Aloha state—a tropical paradise where everyone gets along. However, the reality for many residents is much different. Recent newcomers from Micronesia have fled their island nations due to environmental and economic pressures. Inspired by the stories of Micronesians living in Hawai’i today, Masters of the Currents is a theatrical journey that takes us from remote island nations to urban cities, from ocean water passageways to paved asphalt highways. As the waters of our planet rise, what can we learn from these descendents of the original ocean navigators of the Pacific?

Vessels is a seven-woman harmonic meditation on the transcendental possibilities of song during the Middle Passage, instigated by Rebecca Mwase, co-shaped by Ron Ragin with set design by Jeff Becker. Experienced within an interactive and acoustically rich sculptural environment that invokes those infamous ships, this interdisciplinary ritual performance explores singing as a survival tool and asks, “What does freedom sound like in a space of confinement?” The piece will premiere in October 2018 in New Orleans and then tour to port cities that were active during the Transatlantic Slave Trade.

PROGRAM INITIATIVES

NATIONAL DANCE PROJECT PRODUCTION RESIDENCIES FOR DANCE (PRD)

Production Residencies enhance partnerships between artists and residency sites to prepare new works for touring. PRD grants are awarded to approximately ten Production grantees and prioritize artists/companies who are receiving their first NDP grant and/or artists/companies whose projects are taking on complex challenges. PRDs take place either just prior to a premiere or post-premiere, but prior to the project’s tour.

NATIONAL DANCE PROJECT REGIONAL DANCE DEVELOPMENT INITIATIVE (RDDI)

The Regional Dance Development Initiative (RDDI) provides professional development for dance artists in regions across the U.S. primarily through an intensive dance lab designed to clarify language, identify strategies, and build networks. NDP produces RDDI programs in partnership with a local organizational partner, local funders, and a local advisory committee. To date, NDP has produced six RDDI labs in regions across the U.S.

NATIONAL DANCE PROJECT COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT FUND

Community Engagement Fund Grants are awarded to approximately five NDP Production grantees each year. CEF prioritizes artists who have strong community and social engagement practices, to cover the true costs of working extensively in new communities while on tour; and/or artists who demonstrate commitment to developing a community engagement practice with their project that requires additional on-site time in a community.

NATIONAL THEATER PROJECT TRANSITION GRANTS

Transition Grants provide support beyond NTP-subsidized touring. The purpose is to provide continuity in an ensemble’s management and infrastructure and/or allow a grantee to take advantage of an opportunity for the work that was created and toured through the initial NTP Grant. Transition Grants are by invitation only for previous NTP grantees.

NATIONAL THEATER PROJECT REGIONAL CONVENINGS

NTP regional convenings expand knowledge and experience of ensemble and devised theater in regions of the U.S. that are less well known and resourced. NTP seeks to bridge this knowledge gap through co-hosting regional convenings where regional artists, presenters, funders, and service organizations share experiences and learning about distinct local contexts and discuss geographically specific challenges to creating and presenting work. Participants engage in discussion with NTP advisors and staff about issues of equity around access to production and touring resources. Convenings also include performances by local artists to raise familiarity with the aesthetics of the region and to help inform future NTP project selection.

NATIONAL THEATER PROJECT FINALIST DEVELOPMENT GRANTS

Finalist Development Grants are small grants that offer development support between $5,000 and $10,000 to as many as four NTP Creation & Touring projects reviewed in the final application round. Advisors select projects and recommend specific developmental work that would advance the project, regardless of whether it ultimately receives an NTP Creation & Touring award. Grantees have used the support for the creation of better work samples, construction of crucial set elements, dramaturgical assistance, and the creation of workshop opportunities to generate interest in the project.
